About your personal account on GitHub

To get started with GitHub, you'll need to create a free personal account and verify your email address.

You can also authenticate with Google or Apple - which are the supported social login providers when you create your account on GitHub. For iOS users, even if you have enabled the setting "Hide My Email addresses" for your Apple account, using social login will result in creating a new GitHub account.

Every person who uses GitHub signs in to a user account. Your user account is your identity on GitHub and has a username and profile. For example, see @octocat's profile.

Later, you can explore the different types of accounts that GitHub offers, and decide if you need a billing plan. For more information, see Types of GitHub accounts and GitHub's plans.

Note that the steps in this article don't apply to Enterprise Managed Users. If your GitHub account has been created for you by your company, you can skip this article and continue to Hello World.

Signing up for a new personal account

1. Navigate to <https://github.com/>.
2. Click Sign up.
3. Alternatively, click on Continue with Google to sign up using social login.

👉 Pantalla siguiente al Create account → código de 8 dígitos del correo

Tip: Revisa Spam. El código vence en pocos minutos.

GitHub puede preguntar tamaño del equipo o si eres estudiante. Haz clic en Skip o Continue sin completar.
